A calorimeter is an object used for calorimetry, or the process of measuring the heat of chemical reactions or physical changes as well as heat capacity. Differential scanning calorimeters, isothermal micro calorimeters, titration calorimeters and accelerated rate calorimeters are among the most common types. A simple calorimeter just consists of a thermometer attached to a metal container full ...

Thermochemistry is the study of the heat energy associated with chemical reactions and/or physical transformations. A reaction may release or absorb energy, and a phase change may do the same, such as in melting and boiling. Thermochemistry focuses on these energy changes, particularly on the system's energy exchange with its surroundings. ...

INTRODUCTION. Regular physical activity plays an important role in the body weight control 1 and in the prevention of countless non-transmissible chronic diseases 2. However, some variables should be assessed and manipulated in order to boost the benefits of physical activity, variables as intensity and duration of performed activities.

CHAPTER 3: CALCULATION OF THE ENERGY CONTENT OF FOODS - ENERGY CONVERSION FACTORS. As stated in Chapter 1, the translation of human energy requirements into recommended intakes of food and the assessment of how well the available food supplies or diets of populations (or even of individuals) satisfy these requirements require knowledge of the amounts of available energy in individual foods.

4.1.1. Closing of the mould. The first step in the steam-chest moulding cycle is the closing of the mould.

4.1.2. Filling of the mould. Foamed beads are drawn by air pressure out of a container and blown into the mould by an injector, which usually functions according to the venturi-principle.
